About Our Organization

Wolfe's Neck Center for Agriculture & the Environment seeks to transform our relationship with farming and food for a healthier planet. On our 626 acres of diverse ecosystems we farm, conduct agricultural research on soils and climate change, and invite visitors to engage with the food system and the role we all can play in building a more just and sustainable future. The farm is within a unique mix of ecosystems—creating a remarkable and inspiring place for visitors of all ages to learn and play. Our programs are growing and currently include summer farm camp, school programs, community & visitor programs, and the Organic Dairy Research and Farmer Training Program. Wolfe's Neck Center also manages a community garden, Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program, farm store, oceanfront campground, and seasonal community events and festivals.

Wolfe's Neck Center believes in the power of using our special campus to bring people of all ages to the farm for immersive and meaningful hands-on learning experiences and memorable events. We host both external events for local groups and businesses, and internal fundraising events designed to connect people to the farm, our programs and locally raised, grown and produced food.
